In this times of globalization, disruption and complexities that is happening in the environment, advocacy for mental health programs through the use of various guidance and counseling and psychological services, tools, techniques and strategies in collaboration with different stakeholders from the school, industry and community settings play a substantial role in the awareness and prevention of mental health problems. It is a must for all guidance counselors, psychologists, psychometricians and other professional advocates and responders to be equipped in knowing how to make and facilitate responsive, accountable, evidence-based and effective mental health programs that are all for the welfare of the psychological well being of children, youth, employees, families, and communities.

Resource Speaker/ Facilitator: Niño Jose Mateo, Ph.D., RGC, RPsy

Topic Abstract:

This workshop will introduce participants to the basics of Reality Therapy, a counseling approach based on William Glaser's Choice Theory. Participants will learn the necessary knowledge and skill in relation to setting up a conducive counseling environment to develop a strong therapeutic alliance with the client. It will then focus on the use of the Reality Therapy process. This includes determining what clients want, the total behavior they are currently employing to get it, and their evaluation of how effective these behaviors are. Through lectures, demos and simulation of the counseling process, participants will acquire the strategies and techniques that will guide their clients to have better control of their own behaviors.

#3: Workshop Title: Spotting, Assessing, Intervening and Referring Clinical/Crisis Cases

Topic Abstract:

This workshop aims to equip the participants with fundamental and essential skills on assessment and identification of the more common psychiatric conditions and psychiatric emergencies in the outpatient (i.e., school settings) backdrop. Specifically, suicidality, homicidality, clinical depression, bipolar disorder, psychosis and schizophrenia, and anxiety disorders (panic disorder and generalized anxiety disorder) will be explored via clinical case discussions. Furthermore, the participants will be coached on what specific symptoms or aspects to be on the lookout for; their official diagnostic criteria; how to handle these patients as you are interviewing them; what specific questions to ask; what not to ask; etc. Lastly, I will be discussing with you strategies on how to engage your client and be able to negotiate a treatment plan, as well as how to increase the chances of adherence.

Moreover, this workshop aims to equip the participants with the knowledge of the cognitive model and the fundamental principles of CBT. Participants will also be taught how to structure a CBT session as well as the specific parts of a session. The cognitive model of depression and anxiety will be explored. The basic techniques on working with dysfunctional thoughts and beliefs, which is the core of CBT, will be enumerated and applied via case discussions and group exercises.

4: Workshop Title: Mental Health for Professionals
Resource Speaker/Facilitator: EARNEST L. TAN, R.G.C.
Topic Abstract:

Mental Health Providers are often candidates for burn-out and compassion fatigue. To combat these from happening, it is a must that counsellors, psychologists, psychometricians, counselor designates learn the art and skill of self-care. Self-care can be misconstrued as selfishness. But it is actually the ability to desist from allowing oneself to be consumed by one's roles. This entails learning the following: articulating needs, setting boundaries, striving for holistic health and wellness and enhancing intimacy and support systems.
